Ruling issued in death

BELLE GLADE—Palm Beach County medical examiners labeled the death of Ex. Building Inspector Kenneth Retterer, 61, as a death by natural causes.

According to police report, Sergeant J.R. Eberle responded to a suspicious incident complaint at 802 N.E. 28th Street, called in by Retterer's neighbor, Frankie Miller on Monday, May 27.

Miller said that he hadn't seen Retterer for approximately five days and that he believed something

Closing of birthing center by feds draws criticism

BELLE GLADE—Hospital Board members voiced disfavor over how the subject of the Birthing Center was handled by the Federal Government and the press Tuesday night, May 28.

"We all worked hard to make it a successful program," said Hospital Administrator Pat Lennon. "Last year the Center delivered close to the same number of babies as Everglades Memorial, but the Federal Government decided not to fund the center any longer."

According to Lennon, all equipment has been moved out of the center in compliance with the May 31 deadline, but an obstetrician and pediatrician will serve at the center over the weekend just in case.

Patients will be seen but will be referred and transported to Everglades Memorial in Pahokee.

In conjunction with the closing of the Birth Center, board members voted to halt the idea of hiring an eye surgeon from the coast to fill the space of the Birthing Center.

Lennon said due to the average age of the Glades population as being younger than that of the coast, he felt that an eye program was not needed as much as an ear, nose and throat specialist or a dermatologist.

"We need to look at other specialties needed in the area to be more helpful to the people in the community," he said.

After a year, Glades General is still struggling to get a $3.5 million loan which applies to non-profit hospitals.

If received, the hospital is allowed to borrow the money for a seven year period with low interest rates.

Four statewide banks, none locally, are authorized to make the loans.

Although the hospital needs a letter of credit, board members feel they've gotten a "run-around" from the banks, by employees not returning phone calls, thus hindering Glades General in obtaining information for the loan.

Finance Director Joe Nacrelli said he would call the main branch of the banks to get information.

On a brighter note, the new programs in the hospital, namely the VSP (Very Special Person) program and the five minute Emergency Room procedures have been doing very well, according to Lennon.

The board took a tour through four of the VSP rooms on the third floor which were completely redone.

"We've had positive feedback about the VSP program," said Lennon. "Hopefully this will be an incentive for people to use our hospital."

Lennon said that this hospital has not had one opportunity to pay for lack of emergency room efficiency, since the hospital started advertising its "five minutes in the emergency room or we pay the emergency room expense" two months ago.

FIRING A salute and the playing of "Taps" was also part of the Legion's Memorial Day Ceremony.

Legion observes Memorial Day

BELLE GLADE—A day of remembering the war dead was celebrated by Belle Glade's American Legion Post 20 at the Belle Glade Marina this past Sunday, May 26.

The honoring of the service people who gave their lives for their country is a tradition which has been followed for over 120 years.

According to the Legion's Chaplain Chuck Elliot, decorating the war dead dates from the Revolutionary War to the present Granada Invasion.

Elliot, who was in charge of the ceremonies at the Marina, said he "guesstimates" over 500 people attending the event.

"And that's guessing conservatively," he said. "The food lines started at 1 p.m. and didn't die down until 3:30."

Special guest speaker at the Memorial Day service was William "Bill" Miller, manager of Glades Sugar House, who recited a poem written by L. Binyon, as a salute to the service people who gave their ultimate sacrifice for their country—their lives.

They went with songs to the battle, they were young

Straight of limb, true of eye, steady and aglow.

They were staunch to the end against odds uncouth,

They shall not grow old, as we that are left grow old:

Age shall not weary them or the years condemn.

At the going down of the sun and in the morning

We will remember them.

The ceremony ended in a solemn atmosphere shared by the audience.

A floral wreath was thrown into the Marina waters by First Vice Commander Basil Cook and other members of the crowd also threw red poppies, the Legion's flower, and white carnations into the water.

Seven members of the Legion fired off a three volley salute into the air with their rifles and Willie Pyfrom and Robert Lampi concluded the ceremony by playing Taps, letting the sweet strains float over the water.

After the ceremony, crowd members enjoyed a barbecue pork and chicken dinner and plenty of dancing.

"We want to make this an annual thing at the Marina," Elliot said.

FRITZ STEIN, president of the Florida Division of the American Society of Sugar Cane Technologists, presents Derek Korbly a plaque and $500 scholarship for his winning essay.

Scholarship awarded for essay

The Florida Division of the American Society of Sugar Cane Technologists (ASSCT) awarded its third annual scholarship to Richard Derek Korbly, a 1984 graduate of Glades Day School.

Korbly, son of Richard and Kay Korbly of 800 Bacom Point Rd., Pahokee, was chosen out of 18 other competitors vying for the award.

Wayne Beardsley, member of the ASSCT committee, said students around the lake area high schools, which included LaBelle, Moore Haven, and Clewiston, wrote essays entitled, "Why or Why Not I Would Like To Be A Sugar Cane Grower."

"The criteria we judged on were students' G.R.A., the completion of the application form, letters of reference, and the composition of the essay," said Beardsley.

Students had an April 29 deadline for turning in their essays and according to Beardsley, it took himself and two other judges two weeks to compile and go through the information.

Korbly, 18, plans on majoring in Agri-Business when he attends the University of Florida this fall.

He said he chose to write his essay on why he wanted to be a sugar cane grower.

"My whole family has been in the sugar cane business," said Korbly. "So I know what's going on."

Included in his essay, Korbly hit such high points as to why soil should be preserved, the use of insecticides, and new hybrids of sugar cane.

Aside from a plaque he received from the ASSCT committee, Korbly was also awarded $500.

"In the three years we've presented this award, the competition this year was very close," said Beardsley. "The top papers this year were the best I've seen."

Student stabbed at Glades Central

BELLE GLADE—An argument resulted in a stabbing at Glades Central High School Wednesday, May 22.

According to police report, upon arrival at the school, Patrolman Raymond DeBowe discovered a 17 year old boy bleeding from the chest area.

Investigation revealed that the youth had an argument with a 16 year old girl, also a student at the school, who became angry with him.

The girl, armed with a steak knife she brought from home, thrust the knife into the boy's chest.

He was taken to Glades General Hospital and is now in stable condition.

The girl was arrested and transported to the Division of Youth Services in West Palm Beach.

Pure corn...

SHUCKS! This ABC Bag and Crate truck full of corn had a little collision with the truck belonging to South Boy Grower on SR 27 Friday, May 17. Police determined improper signaling was the cause of the crash. An estimated $5000 worth of damage was done to the trucks. There were no injuries.

Arrest made in assault

BELLE GLADE—A disturbance call led police in arresting Alberto Puentes, 23, 1523 W Ave A on charges of aggravated assault, criminal mischief, and resisting arrest.

According to police report, Ptlm. B.K. Davis, the first officer to arrive at 1523 W Ave A was almost immediately confronted by Puentes, who was wielding a two inch length of a 2x4 piece of wood.

Davis drew his service revolver and ordered Puentes to drop the weapon, at which time he was placed under arrest.

While being transported to the police station, Puentes became violent and began to kick the door of the police car.

Damage was minimal, but the doors functions were damaged.

Bond was set at $1000.

Letters

Dear Editor:

In reference to the Respectively Speaking article of May 23, 1983, I can not understand how or why you can write with such authority about an event that you have never attended.

I have never attended the Indy 500, but have been to many races at Daytona where the speed is just as fast and the racing just as competitive.

In answer to your question "Why do race fans attend a race?"

To see racing, not crashes or injuries. If you had ever been to a race and experienced the hush that falls over the crowd after a crash, you would understand the concern of the crowd for the drivers.

We go to the track to see the utmost in technology pushed to the limit by men and women who know the risks of their jobs.

We follow drivers, see their families, share in their wins and losses.

All I can ask you to do is not criticize until you experience and that goes not only for racing but what ever you chose to write about.

Sincerely,
Bill Cecil

WJNO's attack on Belle Glade

Jack Cole, WJNO's liberal announcer, has suddenly decided to smear Belle Glade. Perhaps to sucker people like me into responding.

I'm from Ohio, but lived in Belle Glade 10 years and met some of the finest people on earth.

What Cole is doing is totally unfair to a fine community. Maybe Belle Glade isn't as pretty as Palm Beach. And it's true, if you're from the Northeast, and looking for a "cause", some of the Glades communities could be juicy targets.

Because Glades folks have their own ways. But, aren't all communities unique?

I had liked Barry Young-WJNO's one breath of conversation-until he made insulting comments about how Mayor Tom Altman talked; inferring that Mr. Altman wasn't as well versed a talker as Mr. Cole or himself.

Belle Glade does have housing problems. So do many places. But there is such a thing as responsible reporting. Part of that responsibility is to thoroughly investigate before reporting.

Mr. Cole went to Belle Glade one time! The activities of a community dictate its profile.

Belle Glade is a farming community. So the make up of its residents is different from West Palm Beach. There's a saying that "people are where they are because that's where they want to be."

Likewise, our daily living environment is mostly self-made. Migrant laborers are in Belle Glade by choice. There certainly no hunger there.

If the courageous Jack Cole's and Barry Young's REALLY object to current housing in Belle Glade-and if they REALLY want to do something-why don't they get a group of investors together, go there and develop good housing.

To start the ball rolling, they'd put a few thousand of their own money up front to show their seriousness in this worthwhile project.

The existing problem-housing could be bought, remodeled, or replaced, as Mr. Cole's expertise dictates...then away this investor's dream would go! Perhaps Jan. Fonda would participate.

Belle Glade is a good community that, especially at this time, deserves our compassion and understanding.

Jim Graham
North Palm Beach

Dear Editor:

I am asking that all good Christians send out a prayer to the Peterson family in Okeechobee Center. They are being threatened with eviction from their home at 78 Everglades Street for reasons the Housing Authority can't seem to legally justify. The people of Okeechobee Center cried "Help!" several years ago and banded together to help themselves.

Since then many of them have closed their eyes to the sight of others losing their homes of a lifetime and closed their ears to the sounds of little children with nowhere to go. Today it is one motherless family crying out for help.

Tomorrow will it be your children?

It is time to stop thinking that it only happens to "other" people.

It is time for the people of Okeechobee Center to pick up where "Okeechobee Center Cries Help" left off.

Let's get together and fight the REAL enemy-not each other, before it's too late.

Dealing with AIDS

As if Belle Glade didn't already have enough problems, the national spotlight has now been focused on our community because of the Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome (AIDS) "epidemic."

According to the findings of Dr. Mark Whiteside, co-director of the Institute of Tropical Medicine in Miami, first released in January, southern Florida ranks third in the nation in AIDS cases reported to the National Center for Disease Control (CDC).

Thirty-seven cases have been confirmed in Belle Glade, seven more than in January.

Of the original 30 cases, 10 victims were Haitian, 11 were intravenous needle users, three or four were homosexuals, and six cases fell into the unclassified category.

Whiteside found that all of the cases are concentrated in the poorer sections of town and that AIDS is not transferred by casual contact.

Beyond that, the disease is a mystery.

Researchers have extended their investigations into demographics, history, genealogy, and environmental factors.

There is even some discussion that the seasonal sugarcane workers who come to this area from the Caribbean may have something to do with the incidence of the disease.

While the problem is serious, real, and of immediate concern to all of us, statistics which show Belle Glade to be the nation's per capita leader in AIDS are probably misleading.

One official of the CDC said if New York conducted a study of its homosexual community alone it would undoubtedly have a higher rate of AIDS than Belle Glade.

While there is much uncertainty about this new disease, one fact is sure: AIDS is no longer confined to the homosexual community.

Research into the causes and cure of AIDS needs to be accelerated. AIDS is a problem that has come to our hometown. We cannot afford to ignore it. And neither can the rest of the nation.

Graduation memories

Going to high school graduation ceremonies in the area made me look back at my own gradations, both high school and college. Even to this day, when I hear Elgar's "Pomp and Circumstance," the academic procession, I get goose bumps.

My high school graduation took place at the Indiana State Fairgrounds, since it was the largest facility around to accommodate several hundred graduating seniors and their families.

I remember all the speakers wishing our class well and saying all the positive things like "The future is yours" and "Never lose sight of your goals," to instill confidence.

I remember my graduation cap kept slipping as I walked up the aisle to receive my diploma. That took a good two minutes to walk, since there were so many of us.

After graduating, I thought, I knew everything. It wasn't until late in my college years when I realized I didn't know as much as I thought I did.

"Senioritis," the disease which strikes most seniors, set in.

Common symptoms were constant worrying about the future, looking forward to graduating but not knowing what to expect in the "real world", and knowing how many other seniors were graduating across the nation that year, and wondering if there really are jobs out there.

At college graduation, I again took that walk up the aisle to receive my diploma.

My cap still slipped even though I tried to hold it in place with 15 bobby pins, and I heard those same words spoken at the ceremony to build up confidence as we entered the "working world".

I believe those words of encouragement still ring true today. Success should be measured according to the individual's own definition of the word. Not only that, I feel that people should make the most of their lives. After all, isn't life a gift? So graduating seniors-GO FOR IT!

BOILER PLATE

Jim Jones

Here's a scary thought: the kids will soon be out of school for the summer.

While having the kids around for three months can be a problem, the intelligent parent will find a sensitive, caring, creative solution.

Some will join the Army and ship out for

Some will pack Junior off to Kansas for a stay with Aunt Pearl. They may even tell Aunt Pearl Junior is on his way.

Some will send Junior off to Camp Yazoo, where he can commune with others of his species. Oh yes, children are definitely a separate species, although I do not agree with the pet name conjured up by one former staff member who called kids "house apes."

That ex-staff member now resides in Clute, Texas. I've always thought it would be cute, knowing his affinity for young'uns, that if someday he found himself with a houseful of his own.

Camp Yazoo and other summer camps are an ideal place to learn discipline, regimentation, self reliance and all the other virtues so difficult to teach at home.

As a kid, I once attended summer camp and still recall the days of sailing, getting acquainted with new kids, swimming, and homesickness.

I also remember the kid who ran into a water snake while swimming. The snake and the kid scared each other so badly they both shot straight up out of the water and retreated rapidly in opposite directions. It's not stretching the truth too badly to say the kid's feet barely touched the water on the way to shore.

Some parents will turn in desperation to summer pre-schools, vacation Bible schools, and an assortment of other activities designed to stave off the dreaded malady of boredom.

After all, just how much television and free time can a kid endure?

An even bigger question is "How much time with the kids can parents stand?"

To be sure, this is not a recent problem. One of our current staff members, once a child herself, caused her parents so much grief that her mother commented she would hang herself if she were blessed with more children.

Apparently, both parent and child survived the trauma relatively well, although there may be some significance in the fact the mother lives in Indiana, while daughter lives in the Glades. Distance makes the heart fond, they say.

Some parents will even try to arrange their kids activities at home, day by day throughout the summer.

You could order a hardbound collection of the Great Books of the western world for the kids to read this summer (did I hear snickering out there?).

Or maybe the kid could dust off the computer you spent all that money on and learn to use it for something more than playing Pac Man.

There may even be a family vacation in the works this summer. But most of us cannot afford to be away from work three months. So that still leaves some time to be filled in.

However you choose to deal with this challenge, remember there are no problems, only opportunities. Keep a stiff upper lip and remember, September is not really that far off.

U. S. Congressmen Tom Lewis has appointed four Glades residents to a committee overseeing the Congressional Award Program for young persons in the 12th Congressional District.

They include James C. Teets of South Bay, Glades County School Superintendent Linda Taylor, Hendry County School Superintendent Bill Burke, and Anita Fairbanks of Clewiston and will be responsible for recruiting young persons to apply for and participate in the recognition program.

The Congressional award is the only award given by Congress other than the Medal of Honor for Soldiers.

The award recognizes young people 14 - 23 for volunteer service, personal development and physical fitness.

Anyone interested in participating in the program should call Gail Tyndall at 305-627-6192.

Coach Don Thompson addresses CDS banquet

BELLE GLADE--Pahokee football coach Don Thompson, guest speaker for Christian Day's Academic Awards banquet, told students to set priorities and goals in their lives by putting God first, family second, and academics third.

"You get wisdom when you get the Lord," Thompson relayed to the students Tuesday night, May

21. "He doesn't like to play second fiddle to anything."

Thompson stressed the fact that students should "make a family." "God made a family to take care of you," he said. "You should respect them. They want what's best for you."

Thirdly, he talked about the importance of academics.

"Like (Apostle) Paul

PAHOKEE FOOTBALL coach Don Thompson addresses Christian Day honor students at their banquet.

Growing up wasn't easy for Thompson. "I wanted to play football to change my life, but I was leading a double life," he said. "I had respect for my elders, but I thought being tough and mean was good. The Lord just wasn't in my heart."

Even though college football coaches told him about Jesus, Thompson said he "just didn't listen."

Life after college took Thompson back to Pahokee where he started coaching.

Faced by low wages, Thompson and his wife started their own weightlifting company, which took them around the nation.

"We built 3000 weight rooms nationwide," he said. "We built some for the navy and even one for the President."

A lot of traveling meant leaving his family behind and, one night while in Kansas City, he turned to the Lord.

"I was in a barroom, doing the wrong thing," said Thompson, "it almost did me in. Several people ended up dead on the street. I asked Jesus to come into my heart."

Ever since then, Thompson says he tells everyone he meets about Jesus.

"That's why God lets me live," he said. "To tell about Jesus."

Thompson said his family had lived in 26 different homes before settling back in Pahokee, where he went back to coaching.

The Thompson home is located between their church and Pahokee high school.

At church, Thompson serves as the youth director and his wife is the music director.

"The front door leads to the church and the back door leads to the football field," said Thompson.

CDS graduates urged to uphold spiritual values

Aside from numerous awards being presented at the Christian Day graduation held at Dolly Hand Thursday, May 23, students also left with a message in their hearts.

Reverend Robert Atkins, Pastor of First Baptist Church in Belle Glade, told students about LIFE.

"L is for learning. Learning is something that will never cease," he said. "I is for inspiration. Pattern your life after Jesus Christ. F is for faithfulness. Be faithful to what you learn morally, and spiritually. And finally E stands for Eternal Values, the lure of materialism standing in the way of spiritual concerns."

Christian Day Principal Gloria Ramos echoed Rev. Atkins' words.

"Don't waste time with foolish ideas and legends," she said. "Exercise spiritually and use the abilities God has given you."

In closing out the ceremony, tender moment was shared when a slide show was presented to the class song, "Friends are Friends Forever" sung by Robin Waggoner.

Angie Miller wins Silver Knight Award

BELLE GLADE-The Silver Knight Award was presented to Angela Page Miller during graduation ceremonies at Christian Day School last week.

Miss Miller is the daughter of Joseph and Jeannie Miller of South Bay. She won the award in the athletics category, beating out top male and female competitors in Palm Beach County.

The Silver Knight award is given in recognition of outstanding seniors for their unselfish service to their school and community. The Silver Knight program was conceived by the late John S. Knight, former Editor Emeritus of Knight-Ridder Newspapers, Inc. and the Miami Herald.

The competition was May 23 at the Poinciana Playhouse in Palm Beach. Miller said she was asked several questions by the judges as well as given an interview. She was judged in the categories of achievement, leadership and character. She was also awarded a $750 cash award.

Miss Miller lists among her achievements during her four years at Christian Day School the 1982 Coach's Award in volleyball and basketball and the Unsung Hero award from the Palm Beach Post. During her sophomore year she was voted best defensive volleyball player, most valuable volleyball player, best offensive and most valuable basketball player, the Unsung Hero in basketball award from the Palm Beach Post, the Palm Beach Evening Times All-Academic Sports Team, honorable mention in the all area girls' all star team and Who's Who in American High School Athletics.

In her junior year she was voted most valuable player and best defensive player in volleyball and most valuable and best offensive player in basketball. She was also on the 1984 Fall Academic team for basketball and won the Christian Day School Athlete of the Year Award.

She also won the school's Citizenship Award that year and was a delegate to a seminar for Tomorrow's Leaders, the Civitan Citizenship Seminar and the Youth Inaugural Conference in Washington.

She was a recipient of the Chamblée Scholarship Award, made the Society of Distinguished American High School Students, Who's Who in American High School Students and won the Leadership Merit Award and the English Merit Award. She was a Christian

The 5 Cs for Christian families

The basis of every Christian home and family must be love. For only as God is the underlying principle will our lives be happy.

God's love is a discipline which trains, corrects, molds, and straightens. He disciplines us because He loves us, so we ought to do likewise with our children.

This love is based on His covenant made with His people and passed on to us as the successors to Israel. His love is outgoing and growing, and ever-expanding, as all love should be.

Our understanding of love comes from Paul's great chapter on love in I Corinthians. The main theme of God's love is acceptance. Acceptance means taking someone at face value although we may not like some of the things they do.

This love includes at least five C's. First there is courtesy, which shows respect for the individual. Each person ought to be courteous, particularly to those in his family. It is a habit that should be developed, of thinking of others.

Husbands and children ought always let wives and mothers know when they will be late. A little thought can make or bring back much beauty into the lives of others.

The second C is consistency. In families, as well as in government, rules and standards need to be set, so that the members will have a pattern within which they can operate.

It is easy to set up rules, but it is hard many times to stick with them. The first time you come up and must say it is hard to live with, but the second will be easier. The good things about standards and rules ought to be emphasized.

Members of the families ought to act in a consistent manner toward one another. Sulking, being moody, or irritated, makes it hard on everyone because they don't know how their joke or smile will be accepted.

Firmness and consistency will help create a sense of security within the home and draw it together. Each person knows his place and part.

The third C is constant care. Parents show this by being around the children when they come home from school, parties, shows, etc. Presence of the parents gives the children something to look forward to.

Constant care is exercising responsibility. Parents should feel a responsibility primarily because they brought their children into the world. Also they will want to teach responsibility to their children.

This C includes the care of property, personal and public. We have been made managers over the talents given to us. These talents are mental and physical abilities and we ought to make good use of them. Conservation of natural resources is also important. In time of scarcity we take good care of the short item, but as soon as we get a plentiful supply we are inclined to waste it.

Let us take constant care of ourselves, our families, and the possessions given over to us,

Dr. David
T. Evans

Everglades
Presbyterian

that we might be good stewards.

Our fourth C is compromise. As much as we would like to be rigid there are times when we ought to be flexible. That is, to be able to give a little. None of us is absolute, therefore we can't take the position which is pure and true.

Another type of compromise is mutual subjection. If all members of the family are subject to each other in Christ, then love is the controlling factor in the family. Only as Christ is first in our family can we be happy and showing love toward one another.

The final C is the concern which enables us to have a genuine interest for others. This concern manifests itself in helping others to develop proper habits and ideals. The interest we show others can help them to be stronger.

Concern is not pity or sympathy, but love in action helping others help themselves. Children and parents work together can strengthen and encourage one another by interest.

For the family to be Christian and to hold Jesus Christ, must be the banding together and unifying force. As we feel and understand His sufferings, we can endure the troubles we may have and grow stronger in the love He has experienced for us.

Love must flow freely between members of a family, uninhibited and unlimited, just as God's love does toward us. Love does not flow automatically, but as we live in the understanding of Christ's sacrificial and giving love, the love becomes easier. Let Christ's love abide in you and in all you do.
